ISLAMOPHOBIA IN NUMBERS

ISLAMOPHOBIA IN NUMBERS

- “The overwhelming majority of European states do not record Islamophobic incidents as a separate category of hate crime. The recording of anti-Muslim/Islamophobic crimes by the police as a separate category of hate crime is essential to uncover the real extent of this problem and to develop counter-strategies to combat it.
- In the EU, only 12% of Muslims who have been discriminated against report their cases to the authorities. (FRA) The non-exhaustive list that follows hints at the extent of underreporting of anti-Muslim hate crimes in Europe by states and NGOs, which has serious implications regarding the awareness of Muslims and the bureaucracy to tackle these issues.” (EIR 2017) The diverging numbers in the countries hint to a different degree of awareness and organization.

ISLAMOPHOBIC STATEMENTS OF POLITICIANS

ISLAMOPHOBIC STATEMENTS OF POLITICIANS

Islamophobic language by high-ranking politicians, mostly from the far right, normalizes a dehumanizing and racist language when it comes to the portrayal of Muslims. This reduces the threshold of what is considered utterable and overall acceptable in public discourse and legitimizes discrimination of Muslims as human beings and as citizens.

AUSTRIA

- Austrian Peoples Party's (ÖVP) General Secretary Karl Nehammer: "I call for a prohibition of fasting for pupils who are clearly weakened and can no longer follow the lesson."

BELGIUM

- Bart de Wever, NVA leader: "Jews avoid conflict that is not the case with Muslims."

BOSNIA

- Republika Srpska President Milorad Dodik: "Imams in Bosnia who recite the adhan are howling."

BULGARIA

- Prosecutor Nedyalka Popova: "At present, according to statistics, Muslims are 10-12% in Bulgaria, and we have no reason to think that they will become less... When they reach 30%, the state is already in danger. They are a monolithic mass, who are easy to manipulate during the elections, and they are almost like a militarized structure, if they have been told to go and vote, they go."

CROATIA

- Ivan Pernar, a member of the Croatian Parliament, accused feminist organizations in Croatia of remaining silent in the face of the UN's decision that wearing a burqa is a human right.

CZECH REPUBLIC

- Dominik Hanko, vice-chair of the SPD party in the Ústecký district: "According to them we are sinners, unbelieving dogs. The more of them there will be here, the more they will force their truth on us until it turns out like it does in their countries. They're like locusts, they destroy everything around them wherever they are."

DENMARK

- Erik Høgh-Sørensen, regional council member in Nordjylland and parliamentary candidate for the Danish People's Party: "At Lindholm (detention center for rejected asylum seekers) pig should be on the menu. Every day. Morning, noon, evening. And for late night snack."

FINLAND

- President Sauli Niinistö: "I read in a newspaper of an Iraqi who has lived a long time in Finland and he said that this [his culture] isn't any problem. When I leave home for work, go to the store, anywhere, I behave like a Finn, as in this society following the rules of the [cultural] game. But when I come home, I have Iraqi culture – truly impressive."

FRANCE

- Deputy of the Republican Party (Les Republicains) Eric Ciotti: "Some French areas are in the hands of Islamists."
- Former French Interior Minister Gerard Collomb in his resignation speech: "Today we live side-by-side... I am afraid that tomorrow we will live face-to-face." His statement implicitly portrayed French Muslims and French non-Muslims as enemies.

GERMANY

- In the wake of racist attacks on people of color and refugees in Chemnitz, German Minister of the Interior Horst Seehofer (CSU): "Migration is the mother of all problems."

GREECE

- Ilias Kassidiaris, Golden Dawn MP: "Today we are in Propylaia [i.e. the old building of the University of Athens]: against the new religious textbooks which promote de-Hellenization and Islamization."

HUNGARY

- Prime Minister Viktor Orbán: “We must state that we do not want to be diverse and do not want to be mixed: we do not want our own color, traditions, and national culture to be mixed with those of others. We do not want this. We do not want that at all. We do not want to be a diverse country.”

IRELAND

- Identity Ireland leader Peter O’Loughlin claimed that Islam was “destroying” cities in Europe and warned of the risk of “Sharia courts”, “rape gangs”, and “grooming gangs” should a mosque be built in Kilkenny.

ITALY

- The Minister of Interior Matteo Salvini declared that nowadays Islam is a danger and his future government would put a stop to the irregular Islamic presence in Italy.

KOSOVO

LATVIA

- The parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Justice stated that the ministry has not abandoned the idea of face-covering restrictions in public places.

NETHERLANDS

- Geert Wilders broadcasted a campaign video with horror music in the background and in red letters a text which read, “Islam stands for hate against Jews, Christians, women, and homosexuals.” At the end of the video ‘Islam is deadly’ was written in red letters, this time resembling dripping blood.

NORWAY

- Per-Willy Amundsen, MP for the Progress Party and former minister of justice: "I have the right to state that the migration from Muslim countries should stop."

POLAND

- The Law and Justice Party released a fearmongering propaganda video which threatened that the rival Civic Platform Party is keen to open Polish borders to "Muslim refugees" who would cause a great deal of unrest in the country. The video presented a dystopian vision of Poland in 2020, after an imagined victory of Civic Platform: "enclaves of Muslim refugees... the tenth victim of an attack... people are afraid to leave home after dark... sexual assaults and muggings are happening everyday... Will we feel safe if Civic Platform makes this happen?"

ROMANIA

- Prime Minister Ana Brnabić on Srebrenica "[it] was a terrible, terrible crime but... genocide is when you are killing the entire population, the women, children and this was not that case."

SLOVAKIA

- MP Stanislav Mizik repeatedly "warned" against the threat of Islamization to Slovakia, which may also be caused by liberal legislation in the field of abortion. He said that the opponents of the law "protect the Islamic occupants of Europe who do not recognize abortion and the first whom they will exterminate when they enforce the Shari'a law, will be the exponents of wicked NGOs."

SLOVENIA

- The president of the Slovenian National Party Zmago Jelinčič Plemeniti on migrants: "They cut heads, they rape young children of all sexes, slaughter on the streets - and they will do this even more. Great. Some people seem to prefer this."

SPAIN

- Santiago Abascal, the president of VOX, shared his opinion that Islam is incompatible with Spanish traditions, distinguishing a more preferred group of immigrants (South Americans) instead of Muslims.

UK

- Boris Johnson: "If you tell me that the burka is oppressive, then I am with you. If you say that it is weird and bullying to expect women to cover their faces, then I totally agree – and I would add that I can find no scriptural authority for the practice in the Koran ... I would go further and say that it is absolutely ridiculous that people should choose to go around looking like letter boxes."

LEGALIZING ISLAMOPHOBIA

LEGALIZING ISLAMOPHOBIA

Governments and political parties implement or demand legislations that directly target Muslims as religious subjects, treating them differently than members of other religious communities

AUSTRIA

- The Austrian government introduced a hijab ban for children in kindergarten.
- The Austrian government attempted to close mosques and the Arab Islamic Community of the Islamic Religious Authority (IGGÖ).
- The general secretary of the governing ÖVP demanded to ban fasting for pupils in school.

BULGARIA

- Municipalities periodically hand out fines for the Friday sermons and calls for prayer. A member of the European Parliament and deputy chair of the VMRO party sent a formal request for control and a ban.
- The municipal council in Stara Zagora decided to resume the activity of renaming the Turkish-Arab toponyms in the territory with Bulgarian ones. As a result of the initiative, 838 toponyms of lands and sites with Turkish-Arab origin were replaced.
- Archaeologists from the National Archaeological Institute of the Bulgarian Academy of Sciences started new excavations in the local Kurshun Mosque (built in 1485) by order of the Ministry of Culture and the Municipality of Karlovo. According to the Office of the Grand Mufti, the new excavations in the historical mosque aimed to stop the Muslim community's attempts to reconstitute the property and to replace its function by another. As the lawsuit continued, the mosque was excavated by archaeologists, and an attempt to turn it into a museum of religions was made by the municipality.

CZECH REPUBLIC

- The SPD (Freedom and Direct Democracy) proposed a law to forbid veiling.

DENMARK

- The Danish government introduced a new set of laws to regulate life in low-income and heavy Muslim enclaves, known as the "Ghetto Package." The government may implement this package with, among others, the following initiatives: greater penalties for crime, less money from the public sector, and restrictions on how to raise children. In total, there are 22 initiatives that are believed will contribute to achieving the government's desired goals.

- Reform of the law on day care. The new law prevents Muslim parents their right to choose freely where their children will go to day care.
- Burqa ban. A violation of the ban triggers a fine of 1,000 Danish Kroner (134 €) and the fine will increase if the ban is subsequently violated again.
- Handshake with local mayor (approved in December 2018): "handshakes with the local mayor are mandatory at the citizenship ceremony if one wants to be a Danish citizen. The law has the undertones of being aimed at Muslims because a share of Muslims refuses to shake hands with the opposite sex."
- The Danish People's Party also demanded serving pork in schools and public institutions. At the same time, they wanted a ban on halal meat in public institutions; however, this was rejected by the Minister of Education Merete Riisager.

FINLAND

- The Diakonia College of Finland, located in Helsinki, bans students from wearing niqabs and burkas but allows hijabs on campus.

FRANCE

- At the French Assembly, Eric Ciotti (The Republicans) proposed to ban exterior religious signs for workers in public companies and for users of public services - today there is only a ban for workers in public services.
- The UN Human Rights Committee criticized French justice for not having condemned the dismissal of an employee wearing the hijab from the private nursery where she was working. The committee considered this dismissal as unfair and as a discrimination based on religion.
- A group of UN experts condemned France for having banned the niqab in 2010.

GREECE

- The New Right Party made a series of suggestions in order to confront immigration:
 - Ban of funding coming from foreign Islamic organizations.
 - Exclusive use of the Greek translation of the Koran.
 - Ban of religious symbols used in public places.
 - Ban of use of any kind of head covering (meaning especially the headscarf and all its variations) deriving from a religious obligation in public and private places and of all clothing that conceals the face. High fines in case of violation of this legislation.
 - Investigation on the legality of purposes and activities of every organized Islamic structure, e.g. unions, clubs, associations, etc.

- Ban of Sharia law in every part of the country. In the case of the implementation of Sharia, the consequence will be the removal of citizenship, if this is the case, and immediate deportation.
- Closure of every illegal mosque.
- Annulment of the first (official) mosque of Athens.

HUNGARY

- MP Dúró Dóra, formerly of Jobbik Movement for a Better Hungary, suggested a draft law on the banning of burkas in public.
- The Fundamental Law of Hungary (known as the Constitution prior to 2011) was amended for the seventh time. Changes included that foreign populations cannot be settled in the country and that all state bodies are obliged to protect Hungary's identity and Christian culture.

KOSOVO

- Kosovo limited police officers' rights to attend prayers during their working hours.

NETHERLANDS

- The SGP (Reformed Political Party) filed a motion regarding the right to refuse participation in school trips which involve visiting religious institutions (like mosques, churches, and synagogues) which is part of the school curriculum. Parents can apply for an exemption for their children but the schools are not obliged to comply with the exemption request. By calling a ban on Muslim call for prayer, issuing the manifesto, and excluding visiting mosques, it is apparent that the SGP is attempting to split society in general and exclude Muslims in particular.
- Restrictions on ritual slaughtering have been discussed for years. According to the new law, if an animal is not insensitive to pain within 40 seconds of slaughter, based on measures called "induced eyelid reflex" and "corneal reflex," it must be shot.

NORTH MACEDONIA

- The primary school Krste Petkov Misirkov in Radovich was fined for allowing an iftar dinner to be organized on the school premises.

NORWAY

- The parliament passed a bill banning cloth covering of the face during classes at educational institutions as well as day-care centers, which included face-covering Islamic veils such as the burka and niqab.

SLOVAKIA

- Amendment of Law No. 308/1991 Coll. on Freedom of Religious Faith and the Status of Churches and Religious Communities. The law: (a) increased the number of signatures required to register churches and religious communities in Slovakia from 20,000 to 50,000; (b) determined that the signatories must be citizens of the Slovak Republic who are members of the church or the religious community; (c) the signatories must confirm their signature by submitting personal data. These conditions of registration are discriminatory because only four churches from the 18 currently registered churches and religious communities in Slovakia meet the conditions.
